Texas-style pepper & smoke smoked pork ribs - hot toss with Firm tofu, Rice vinegar and Wombok

Template-generated - not kitchen-tested. Check the packet.

4 servings · about 333 minutes · balanced · medium · Start in the morning

Pork ribs cook until tender with a clean bite; the regional sauce arrives after the smoky cooking. Served with warm buns and cabbage-carrot slaw and your selected regional sauce. Seeded plate: hot toss with Firm tofu, Rice vinegar and Wombok.

Equipment

Covered roasting dish · Tongs · Probe thermometer · Mixing bowl · Grater · Small saucepan · Clean chopping board and knife · Food thermometer · Grate-level thermometer · Outdoor smoker or indirect barbecue (oven alternative provided) · Wide frying pan

Recorded allergens: soy, wheat. Check product labels and prevent cross-contact.

Ingredients

1400 g Pork spare ribs
- Note: Trim loose fat; remove the tough membrane if present. Smaller servings may use a portion of a rack.

4 Vegan buns
- Note: Choose egg-free and dairy-free bread; for gluten-free recipes use a labelled product.

250 g Cabbage
- Note: Finely shred.

200 g Carrot
- Note: Coarsely grate.

1 tbsp Apple cider vinegar

3 tbsp Olive oil

3 cloves Garlic
- Note: Finely mince.

2.5 tsp Smoked paprika
- Note: Use a pure spice or herb; check packaged-food labels for your dietary needs.

1.5 tsp Ground black pepper
- Note: Use a pure spice or herb; check packaged-food labels for your dietary needs.

0.5 tsp Salt
- Note: Use less if the selected packaged product is salty.

120 ml Vegetable stock
- Note: Prepared liquid vegan stock; check allergens and gluten-free labelling where needed.

1 tsp Garlic powder
- Note: Use a pure spice or herb; check packaged-food labels for your dietary needs.

0.5 tsp Onion powder
- Note: Use a pure spice or herb; check packaged-food labels for your dietary needs.

0.25 tsp Chilli flakes

Note: Use a pure spice or herb; check packaged-food labels for your dietary needs.

1.5 tbsp Vegan tomato ketchup

Note: Choose a vegan-labelled, dairy-free product. Reserve for finishing; use plain tomato ketchup rather than a prepared barbecue sauce.

1 tsp Apple cider vinegar

Note: Use a plain vegan vinegar; add gradually to taste. Check the label for sulphites.

10 g Flat-leaf parsley

Note: Finely chop and reserve for finishing.

600 g Potatoes

Note: Peel if you prefer, cut into even chunks, and simmer until tender.

30 ml Rice vinegar

Note: Unseasoned rice vinegar. Check the packet.

15 g Fresh coriander

Note: Leaves and tender stems. Also called cilantro.

200 g Wombok

Note: Shred. Also called Chinese cabbage.

250 g Firm tofu

Note: Press, then cut into cubes. Check the packet.

Method

1. Prepare the rack

Remove the tough membrane if present and trim dangling pieces. Brush the ribs with 1 tbsp olive oil. Season with the 1 tsp smoked paprika, 0.5 tsp black pepper and 0.5 tsp salt allocated to the main. Reserve the regional seasoning ingredients for the separate sauce, including any additional smoked paprika.

2. Start the rib smoke

Stabilise the outdoor smoker at 120-140°C and cook the ribs indirectly for 2-3 hours until the surface is dry and coloured. Keep the meat away from direct flames.

3. Cover and soften

Add 150 ml hot water in a tightly covered tray and cook for another 1-2 hours at 130-140°C. Total time is about 3-5 hours for the listed rack, with longer time needed for thicker racks. Start the slaw during the final 15 minutes.

4. Prepare the slaw

Begin this side during the final 15 minutes, once the main is nearly cooked or tender. Shred the cabbage and grate the carrot. Toss with 1 tbsp apple cider vinegar allocated to this side and 1 tbsp of the olive oil allocated to the side. Keep chilled until serving.

5. Cook the regional sauce separately

Heat 1 tbsp olive oil allocated to the sauce in a small saucepan. Soften the minced garlic for 30 seconds over low heat, then add 1 tsp ground black pepper, 1.5 tsp smoked paprika, 1 tsp garlic powder, 0.5 tsp onion powder, 0.25 tsp chilli flakes and all 120 ml vegetable stock. Simmer gently for 3-4 minutes, stirring to cook the spices without scorching. Keep sweet pastes and sugary seasoning off direct heat. Keep the sauce hot while finishing the main.

6. Add the fresh sauce finish

Chop any herbs or spring onions; zest and juice any citrus. Stir 1.5 tbsp vegan tomato ketchup, 1 tsp apple cider vinegar, 10 g flat-leaf parsley into the cooked sauce off the heat, using citrus juice to taste. If tahini is included, loosen it first with a little water. The complete sauce is now ready for the filling, dip or serving plate; keep sweet sauce off direct heat.

7. Check, rest and portion

The meat must pass 71°C for safety; continue until probe-tender, usually around 90-96°C. Tenderness, cut thickness and a thermometer determine the finish, not the clock alone. Check between bones without touching them. Rest 10 minutes, then cut into portions. Spoon on the cooked regional sauce after cooking; do not burn a sweet glaze over direct flames.

8. Warm the buns

Split and toast the buns cut-side down on a clean grill area or in a dry pan for 1-2 minutes; watch closely. Serve the slaw alongside or tuck it into the buns.

9. Serve the complete meal

Bring the smoked pork ribs and warm buns and cabbage-carrot slaw to the table together. Offer any remaining prepared regional sauce alongside. Serve promptly while the hot components are hot.

10. Serve the regional staple

Serve Potatoes with the smoked pork ribs. Template staple, not a kitchen-tested traditional dish. Check the packet.

11. Toss it hot

Cook the main to the endpoint already in this recipe, then toss it hot with the added ingredients for about a minute. Keep raw animal ingredients separate from the finished plate, and wash hands, boards and utensils after handling them. Fold in Rice vinegar, Fresh coriander, Wombok, Firm tofu. Check the packet on every bottled sauce. A sauce can contain fish, soy, or wheat even when this plate does not list them. This plate is one satisfying assignment from a seeded SAT search on this device. The same seed repeats it. It is template-generated and not kitchen-tested. It is not a proof of taste, safety, or P versus NP.

Method notes

Use fuel-burning grills and smokers outdoors only, following the appliance manual. Never burn wood, charcoal or a smoking tray in an ordinary indoor oven or enclosed room.

For low hot-smoking, stabilise the cooking chamber at 120-140°C and monitor at grate level with a separate probe. Keep smoking temperatures within the USDA 107-149°C (225-300°F) range; a food probe measures the centre separately.

Bullet smoker: use its heat shield/water pan as the manufacturer directs. Offset smoker: cook in the indirect chamber away from the firebox and watch the hotter end. Kamado: fit the approved heat deflectors for indirect cooking. Vent settings and fuel amounts are appliance-specific; follow the manual.

Ordinary oven alternative: Cover the listed 1.4 kg rack with 150 ml water and cook at 160°C conventional /140°C fan for 2.5-3.5 hours until tender; uncover at 200°C for 10 minutes if browning is needed. Scale liquid and use the small-portion route for 1-3 servings. The listed smoked paprika gives smoky seasoning; an ordinary oven does not hot-smoke food.

Regional pastes and finishing ingredients are used in a separate cooked sauce and dressing. Do not expose a sweet sauce to prolonged direct flames.

Hot-and-fast is a hotter pace, not another dish. Butcher paper, a foil wrap, a water spritz, and a snake or minion fire are equipment choices. Follow the appliance manual. None of them replaces the thermometer. This template does not cold-smoke or cure raw food at home.

Beef-short-rib alternative: replace with the same weight of thick bone-in beef short ribs. Smoke at 120-140°C for 3 hours, then cover with the scaled 150 ml water for 2-4 hours until 90-96°C and probe-tender. A small portion can instead be covered-braised at 160°C for 2.5-3.5 hours. Pork-rib timing is not sufficient for all thick beef short ribs.

Timings are estimates for the specified thickness. Read all steps first and prepare the sides near the end of long cooks. Scale quantities by servings, but check each piece independently; batch size does not scale the cooking time linearly.

Cook session

Morning start. Light an outdoor cooker after breakfast, or do the prep in the morning and cook later. Keep a low smoke chamber within 107-149°C (225-300°F). Probe the food separately. Start the side near the end. Keep finished hot food above 60°C. Do not leave it on the bench through the afternoon. Refrigerate anything that will not be served hot.

Food safety

The meat must pass 71°C for safety; continue until probe-tender, usually around 90-96°C. Tenderness, cut thickness and a thermometer determine the finish, not the clock alone. Keep raw food separate from ready-to-eat ingredients. Keep cold foods at 5°C or colder and hot food above 60°C until serving; refrigerate leftovers promptly in shallow containers.
